The General Manager was with the Company since its inception and ever since the demise of the owner, ran the factory in his own way. He did not give a proper feedback or periodical report to Mr. Ramaswamy. He felt unhappy over this; but did not want to displease the General Manager left the Company, things may worsen further and to find a proper substitute may be difficult.

Mr. Ramaswamy in his anxiety to improve the matter appointed Miss Kamala, a fresh MBA from US and also daughter of a family friend. He requested her to go to the factory and assigned her responsibility of setting the whole things right. Miss. Kamala was absolutely new to the environment itself, though she was a Marketing expert by qualification.
