India, the largest democracy of the world, has been a home of rich and varied cultures and civilization. Ancient India was an advanced knowledge society with a continual process of intellectual renaissance through inspiring contributions by saints and many faiths, philosophers, poets, scientists, astronomers and mathematicians. There existed Great Universities like Takshasila and Nalanda where students not only from India but also from far off countries came to study diverse subjects. In the 21st century, India by using its core competence in various technologies including information technology, vast national resources and human resources is poised to become a knowledge super power.

Pondicherry (Pondicherry), a beautiful serene territory on the Coromandel Coast of the Bay of Bengal with French ambience, is situated 160 Km (about 100 miles) south of Chennai (Madras) in South India, where many cultures meet. The area is unique for being the only place in India with a touch of French culture, majestic, churches, temples, mosques, seaside villas and cobbled streets. Pondicherry has been known as a seat of spiritual emancipation and educational excellence since the days of Sage Agasthya, who chose this place for his ashram of higher learning and pursuit. In recent times, its pristine glory has been acclaimed throughout the world by the teachings of Sri Aurobindo and the Mother underscoring this place for his ashram of higher learning and pursuit.
